THE LAW HAS MANY LANGUAGES

Legal translations have grown to be one of the largest segments of the translation industry and Translizer is well positioned to support law firms everywhere to get the translation support they need.

Law firms need much more than just a legal translation company. As populations move across borders, everyday legal matters become multi-lingual. You need to translate passports, statements, financial documents, contracts, medical reports and the list goes on. One translator cannot possibly have the required expertise to know all of these specialist areas – you will either need to manage multiple vendors on your own or have Translizer do it for you.

CERTIFIED, SWORN AND NOTARISED TRANSLATIONS

It is not enough that the text is translated. Legal translations will often need to be certified to fully conform to the jurisdiction in which it is presented. Translizer can certify translations made by any of our vendors by issuing a Notarized Certificate of Translation. This certification makes the translation conform to the stipulations of the Hague Convention of 5 October 1961 and thus it is an official translation in all 97 signatory countries. Some jurisdictions have different requirements and we can advise you on what you need. Translizer employs an in-house Notary Public who specialises in certifying translations.

CASE STUDY: JENKINS & KAMIN LLP

Jenkins & Kamin LLP is a family law firm in Houston, Texas. They represent clients from around the globe and their practice includes a strong focus on international family law issues and Hague actions to address international child abduction complaints and a variety of multijurisdictional issues. The attorneys at Jenkins & Kamin have multiple translation projects on the go at any given time and they need an efficient tool to manage and monitor this critical aspect of their work. Upon hearing of Translizer, they jumped at the chance to implement it into their case preparation process and they've never looked back.

"My law firm is extremely pleased with the services provided by Translizer. With only 24-hours notice, a Translizer legal vendor translated a 50 page decree from English to French. Within 3 days my firm had delivered a notarized, certified translation of the decree to the appellate court in France. Their services were efficient and cost effective. I highly recommend their services."

- Laura D. Dale, Partner.

Translizer is so easy to use that it requires no lengthy and expensive user training and because it can be accessed by any web browser, the implementation is fast and free.

Other clear benefits include the organisation, clarity and time saving provided by Translizer. Previously paralegals had to contact translation companies by telephone or e-mail, send the documents in for quotation purposes and wait for a response. Translizer is instant and secure. Files are only seen by the chosen translation vendor and because Translizer works in real-time, it now takes paralegals less than 2 minutes to do what took 24-48 hours before Translizer.
